Simon says: Yes to Riders

Former B.C. Lions receiver Geroy Simon laughs while speaking to reporters after the CFL team traded him to the Saskatchewan Roughriders, during a news conference in the team's locker-room in Surrey, B.C., on Thursday. DARRYL DYCK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goodbye Lions.

Two-time Grey Cup champ looks forward to 'exciting opportunity in Saskatchewan'

The longtime face of the B.C. Lions' franchise is heading to Saskatchewan.

Geroy Simon, the CFL's all-time receiving yards leader, was traded to the Roughriders on Thursday in exchange for receiver Justin Harper and a third-round pick in the 2014 Canadian college draft.

"After many weeks of discussion with Geroy, we have reached a point where we believe it's in the best interest of both parties to move forward with a mutually agreed upon trade," Lions general manager Wally Buono said in a statement. "Geroy's accomplishments as a player are well documented and his work in our community has been outstanding."

Simon, a two-time Grey Cup champ and six-time CFL all-star, has recorded 15,787 yards over his 14-year career.

"My 12 seasons with the B.C. Lions have been the most incredible years of my professional life," Simon said.

"The fans in B.C. have treated me as one of their own since I arrived here in 2001, and I'll never forget it. I'm looking forward to a new and exciting opportunity in Saskatchewan."

Speaking at an availability in Regina, Riders GM Brendan Taman said Simon's talent and experience will help his team.

"Obviously, his on-field play speaks for itself," said Taman. "But the other thing he's going to bring is his leadership. His value to our team on and off the field is going to be immense. Geroy's got some points to prove to a lot of people he still can play. So I think there's a lot of bonuses to doing it.

"We know he's 37. We're aware of that, but Ray Lewis is 37 and he's going to the Super Bowl."

Riders coach Corey Chamblin said Simon will complement Weston Dressler and be a "big veteran presence in the locker room." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Police investigation

Two Regina women face 44 child abuse, sexual abuse charges

Two women face dozens of charges after a police investigation into allegations of physical and sexual abuse of two girls in Regina.

Police say the case started last week when it was alleged two young children were involved in possible abuse of a third child.

The investigation led authorities to believe that two women in a home had abused a 10-year-old girl and an 11-year-old girl who were living there.

It's alleged the abuse took place between Jan. 1 and Jan. 18.

The women, ages 37 and 55, are not being named to protect the identity of the children.

They each face 22 charges, including four charges of sexual assault with a weapon, two charges of assault causing bodily harm, three charges of sexual interference and two charges of producing child pornography.

Grader operator dies in train collision

A man is dead after a grader was struck by an eastbound CN train at roughly 9 a.m. Thursday morning.

The collision, which happened near Paynton, Sask., resulted in the driver of the grader being killed and several of the train tankers, some of which were carrying crude oil and the locomotive becoming derailed.

A release from the RCMP said visibility at the time of the collision was good and the investigation is ongoing.

Information from the province said the train and the grader collided at a rail crossing and that CN Rail has deployed its emergency response team. METRO

New bus routes planned for Regina

Public feedback.
Residents will get chance to weigh in at five separate open houses

JEFF MACKEY
jeff.mackey@metronews.ca

Regina's public transit users will soon get their chance to rant or rave about the city's bus routes. The city will be hosting five open houses looking for public feedback on a proposed redesign for the transit system between Jan. 30 and Feb. 5.

According to the city, the feedback is necessary to ensure the new routes streamline buses and expand service effectively as the city continues to grow.

"We actually experienced an increase of 9.3 per cent in ridership last year and had over 6 million riders," said Nathan Luhning, manager of business development for the transit department at the City of Regina.

"In Regina it has typically been that you can get anywhere in 10-15 minutes in your car but as the city starts to grow you see more traffic, more congestion and parking is getting more difficult to attain," said Luhning.

The proposed changes are based on ridership information gathered over the last year through newly installed electronic fare boxes.

A Regina city bus makes its way through downtown. The city is looking for public input for a redesign of bus routes. JEFF MACKEY/METRO

"We want to decrease the travel time," said Luhning. "Also, right now you will see lots of areas on the periphery of the city, residential areas that do not have service. We want to expand our service to reach those areas."

The city found that service could be improved by focusing on the routes people use often, and scaling back on the ones they don't.

"Currently it is 20 minutes (of stop frequencies) for every route and we propose switching some routes to 15 minute frequencies, the ones that are well ridden, and then on the ones that are not well ridden reduce those down to 30 minute frequencies and with those extra resources then we can service some new areas."

You can learn more about the route changes at Regina.ca or at one of the five open houses the city will be hosting.

We Day brings big names to Saskatchewan

For the first time ever, Free The Children is bringing We Day to Saskatchewan and they're bringing some familiar faces along for the ride.

Golden Globe winner Martin Sheen and Canadian rockers Hedley are two of the big names the event will bring to Saskatoon's Credit Union Centre on Feb. 27.

Free the Children co-founder, Craig Kielburger, said in order for students to attend the stadium-sized event, they'll have to earn it through one locally focused act and one globally focused act that encourages positive social change.

"We're incredibly excited we'll have 15,000 students joining us on Feb. 27 from 300 schools across the province and they'll all earn their way to be there," said Kielburger. "It's going to be an incredible celebration of the spirit of volunteerism that is so prevalent in this province."

At the announcement, which happened at St. Joseph's High School in Saskatoon, were cast members from the Canadian series, Degrassi the Next Generation. Luke Bilyk, who plays the character of Andrew "Drew" Torres, said it's important for kids to understand they can have influence.

"It's amazing when you see kids helping kids — it empowers them," said Bilyk.

PotashCorp is the regional title sponsor for the event and now, with a three-year commitment of $9.6 million to Free the Children, We Day will become an annual occurrence in the province.

"We're all about the community and being local, but we're also a global company and we want to have that global reach," said Lee Knafelc, vice president of human resources and administration with PotashCorp. "Food security is just such a perfect fit for us, it's such a huge issue for the world and we want to be a part of that solution."

Need work? Female? How about a job in politics?

Women gaining ground. Federal government list compares number of women in politics across Canada

"I don't think I want to use the word 'difficult.' It's just different for women," June Draude says of being a woman in politics. The minister of social services is shown in November at the groundbreaking for an affordable-housing project in Saskatoon. JANE CAULFIELD/METRO IN SASKATOON

With Saskatchewan ranking ninth on a national list comparing the number of female legislators, the province's 11 female MLAs can add "role model" to their resumé.

"It's been encouraging that we now see more women that are leading their parties, which does help other women because it does show them role models," said Clare Beckton, executive director of the Centre for Women in Politics and Public Leadership at Carleton University in Ottawa.

Parliament released the list yesterday. It ranks Quebec at the top, with 32.8 per cent of women occupying available seats in the legislature. The Northwest Territories sits at the bottom of the list, with 10.5 per cent.

"The more women that we can see winning elections and being in position, in time women will come to think of it, and men, that it's normal and natural to have as many women (in government) as men," Beckton said.

June Draude, who has been in politics for 17 years, said getting more women involved is about focusing on the opportunities, rather than barriers.

"I don't think I want to use the word 'difficult.' It's just different for women," said Draude, minister of social services in Saskatchewan. "There are always things that could be seen as a barrier, but there are always things that are opportunities, as well.

"It's more about getting women to think of this as an opportunity where they can see themselves as part of a system that hasn't had a lot of women there."

How they stack up

The number of female legislators across Canada:

- Quebec: 41 of 125 (32.8%)
- British Columbia: 27 of 85 (31.76%)
- Yukon: 6 of 19 (31.6%)
- Manitoba: 16 of 57 (28%)
- Ontario: 30 of 107 (28%)
- Alberta: 23 of 87 (26.4%)
- Nova Scotia: 12 of 52 (23%)
- Prince Edward Island: 6 of 27 (22.2%)
- Saskatchewan: 11 of 58 (19%)
- Newfoundland and Labrador: 8 of 48 seats (16.7%)
- Nunavut: 3 of 19 (15.8%)
- New Brunswick: 7 of 55 (12.7%)
- Northwest Territories: 2 of 19 (10.5%)

No promise of a tax freeze as property values soar

Government Relations Minister Jim Reiter says Saskatchewan property taxes have jumped 67 per cent over the past four years. He said on Thursday at the legislature that the province would do its best not to raise taxes. JEFF MACKEY/METRO

If you own property in Saskatchewan, chances are it is worth a lot more now than it was just four years ago.

The province says the overall value of property in Saskatchewan has risen by 67 per cent over the past four years. The assessment of property has grown to $97 billion in the 2013 revaluation year from $58 billion in 2009.

"I think that's good news. That's a sign of a growing economy," Government Relations Minister Jim Reiter said.

"Of course, the other side of the equation is people are concerned about what effect that's going to have on property tax."

Both municipalities and the provincial government set property-tax rates, with the province setting the education portion to pay for kindergarten to Grade 12.

A taxing matter

"People are concerned about what effect that's going to have on property tax."
Government Relations Minister Jim Reiter

Reiter says the province is going to take a look at ways to lessen the impact of the increase.

"Essentially, it's going to be where the mill rate gets set for the various property classes," he said on Thursday at the Legislature.

"There's a lot of moving parts to this process, so we've got a lot of work to do yet during the budget process. But the obvious one is, we will be lowering the mill rates from where they currently are. The question is how much."

The current mill rate on residential properties is 9.51, so that means people pay $9.51 for every $1,000 of property value.

It was only a matter of a few years ago that the province began setting the education property tax. School divisions used to do it, but in 2009 the government changed the system to implement a provincewide mill rate for education property tax.

Reiter said the province would do its best, but added he "certainly won't promise that there won't be a tax increase."

"I can't give you a dollar amount. We're still too far away from determining that," he said.

Budget cuts

Winter access, services put on ice at national parks

Several of Canada's national parks, long celebrated by the federal government as an "integral part of the Canadian identity," have shut down winter services because of budget cuts.

The move, which followed a $29.2-million funding reduction, has forced some rural communities to do their own snow clearing with Parks Canada machines to continue taking part in activities and attracting tourists.

Affected parks include Point Pelee in southern Ontario, Riding Mountain in Manitoba, Prince Albert in Saskatchewan and Elk Island in Alberta. The parks are technically open, but access points and trails are unplowed, visitor centres closed and emergency services sparse.

Parks Canada said budget constraints forced them to evaluate how much the parks were being used during the off-season. He said some people like the concept of the park being open in the winter, but they don't in fact go there.

"What are the services that people are asking us to give? How many are actually participating in it? And then we have a decision to make," said Andrew Campbell, vice-president of visitor experience.

"Does this actually make sense to spend tens or hundreds of thousands of dollars on a service that is offered to a couple of hundred people?"

But Nancy Wood-Archer, owner of the Hawood Inn inside Prince Albert National Park, disagrees with the characterization of the parks as poorly used during the winter.

"The three year-round businesses in our community are all owned and run by Saskatchewan families," Wood-Archer said.

Local communities around Riding Mountain and Prince Albert National Park in Saskatchewan were so intent on using the parks, they convinced Parks Canada to allow volunteers to operate federal trail-grooming machines. In Prince Albert, that means 50 kilometres out of 180 kilometres will be groomed, Wood-Archer said.

India. Rape-and-murder trial starts behind closed doors in fast-track court

The trial of five men charged with the rape and murder of a 23-year-old student on a New Delhi bus began Thursday with opening arguments by the prosecution in a special fast-track court set up just weeks ago to handle sexual-assault cases.

A sixth suspect has claimed he is a juvenile and is expected to be tried in a juvenile court.

On Thursday, a magistrate separately rejected a petition by Subramanian Swamy, a prominent politician, that no leniency be shown toward the accused who claims to be a juvenile because of the brutal nature of the crime, said Jagdish Shetty, an aide to Swamy.

Magistrate Geetanjali Goel is expected to rule on the suspect's age on Monday.

Since Friday is a public holiday in India, the next hearing in the case was set for Monday, when the defence will present its opening arguments.

Chinese censors slash love scenes

Nearly 40 minutes have been chopped from the film Cloud Atlas for Chinese audiences, deleting both gay and straight love scenes to satisfy censors despite a public that increasingly chafes at censorship.

China allows only 34 foreign films to be shown each year in its movie theatres, which don't have a classification system. All movies must be acceptable to adults and children of any age. Censors also target anything that portrays China or the Chinese in a negative light.

Front-line combat.
Lifting the U.S. ban on female fighters will take time to implement

Allowing women to serve in combat roles will strengthen the U.S. military's ability to win wars, Defence Secretary Leon Panetta said Thursday, shortly before his official announcement of the landmark lifting of the ban.

"Our military is more capable, and our force is more powerful, when we use all of the great diverse strengths of the American people," Panetta said.

President Barack Obama supports the Pentagon's decision and believes the country should continue to remove "unnecessary gender-based barriers to service," White House spokesman Jay Carney told reporters.

The decision presents a daunting challenge to military leaders who will have to decide which, if any, jobs they believe should be open only to men.

Women comprise about 14 per cent of the 1.4 million active military personnel.

Problem of respect

Ban tied to sexual assault

The top U.S. military officer says he believes the rise in sexual assaults in the military can be linked to the longstanding ban on women serving in combat.

Gen. Martin Dempsey said Thursday the problem is due partly to the military's separate classes of personnel — male "warriors" versus the rest.

Dempsey says the issue is more complicated than that but he indicates the disparity between the roles of men and women has created a psychology that lends itself to disrespect.

Spence signs declaration opening new chapter for First Nations

Spence vs. Brazeau

Journalist captures Twitter tussle

Chief Theresa Spence and Senator Patrick Brazeau exchanged 140-character insults Thursday morning.

Spence was in hospital, but a tweet from the @ChiefTheresa Twitter account called Brazeau a "typical colonized Indian asshole" in response to his criticism of Idle No More.

The tweet has since been deleted, but a screenshot was captured by Saskatchewan reporter Jeremy Warren.

The pugilistic senator immediately hit back, referring to the comment as a "traditional angry victim speech."

A First Nations senator from Quebec and former chief of the Congress of Aboriginal Peoples, Brazeau has been an outspoken opponent of Spence and the Idle No More movement.

Brazeau's frequent use of Twitter has occasionally landed him in hot water. In June, he was forced to apologize to reporter Jennifer Ditchburn after a tweet obliquely referred to her as a bitch.

Political struggle. Vow to improve conditions for aboriginals agreed upon by chiefs, federal opposition parties

Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence emerged from hospital Thursday to sign the First Nations declaration that ended her hunger protest after six long weeks — a period during which Stephen Harper barely uttered her name.

Indeed, for a crisis that just two weeks ago had the prime minister squarely at its centre, it seemed a weary and chaotic finale, one largely devoid of anti-Harper vitriol.

The Cree leader, who hadn't had solid food since Dec. 11, spent most of the day recovering in hospital, only to show up unannounced at a celebration that brought First Nations chiefs from across the country.

A chanting, drumming crowd greeted her at a downtown Ottawa hotel, where she thanked family, friends and supporters for their backing during the six chilly weeks she spent on Victoria Island, just upstream from Parliament Hill.

She suggested she now intends to step back from the political struggle.

"There you go, chiefs, you take over and I'll be part of the audience sometimes, so I'll be watching you guys," Spence said, calling for unity among First Nations leaders.

"It's time to really stay together no matter what hardship that we go through, and no matter what the government intends to do to us to divide us. Always remember that we're here together and we're here for our people, especially the youth."

Emissaries from federal opposition parties kept a low profile at the second ceremony, where Spence herself signed the declaration that had been so painstakingly crafted to bring her protest to a conclusion.

The end came as other chiefs and federal opposition parties vowed to take up her cause of treaty implementation and improved conditions on reserves. And it followed careful negotiation by interim Liberal leader Bob Rae.

Rae said he was concerned some days ago that there was a risk of the whole effort "going off the rails" if Spence didn't call a stop to her protest. He said he told Spence: "It's everyone's struggle. But no one should die."

The chiefs and the politicians signed the 13-point declaration committing them to seeking immediate improvements to native housing and education; a meeting of First Nations chiefs, the prime minister and Governor General; and full implementation of treaty and aboriginal rights within five years.

"We agree the self-sacrifice and the spiritual courage of Chief Theresa Spence, along with Elder Raymond Robinson and all other fasters ... have made clear the need for fundamental change in the relationship of First Nations and the Crown," the declaration states.

"We fully commit to carry forward the urgent and coordinated action required until concrete and tangible results are achieved in order to allow First Nations to forge their own destiny," says the preamble.

National interest

A new poll suggests Canadians remain confused by the efforts of aboriginal activists and leaders to improve their relationship with the rest of Canada.

- 40%. The Canadian Press/Harris-Decima survey found just four in 10 respondents were both familiar with and sympathetic to the Idle No More cause.
- Sympathy. Almost two in three respondents who were aware of the movement's goals said they were sympathetic, with Atlantic Canada and British Columbia residents most likely to be supportive.

No sign of Harper

"Polls may come up and down and people may say this and that about this issue. To me, it's not about polls, it's about justice ... They just don't get it, frankly."

Interim Liberal leader Bob Rae on the Conservative government's reaction to requests from First Nations leaders to re-examine aboriginal issues.

Sustainable sourcing. Ecolabel will certify that Alaskan pollock in McDonald's Filet-O-Fish is from ethical suppliers

McDonald's says it will be the first U.S. national restaurant chain to carry a label from a group that certifies sustainable fishing practices.

The blue "ecolabel" from the Marine Stewardship Council certifies that the Alaskan pollock used in McDonald's Filet-O-Fish sandwiches comes from suppliers with sustainable fishing practices.

Major retail chains including Walmart and Whole Foods already use the council's label. The non-profit group is paid a royalty fee from companies that use its label. For McDonald's, that means the fee would be based on sales of its fish offerings, such as the Filet-O-Fish and the Fish McBites that will be launched as a limited-time offer next month.

The Marine Stewardship Council, which has its international base in London, has about 300 fisheries in its program, representing between 12 to 14 per cent of the world's fisheries. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Creditor claims. Mediation to divvy up Nortel assets fails to reach agreement

Efforts to divide up nearly $9 billion in assets from the now-bankrupt Nortel Networks Corp. ended Thursday without an agreement.

A spokesman for the talks says Ontario Chief Justice Warren Winkler, who was leading the proceedings, has concluded that further efforts at mediation were no longer worthwhile.

1 OCD4SH. I Mother Earth's Brian Byrne is raising awareness about his OCD4SH campaign, a collaboration between his clothing company OCD Collective and the autism foundation Surfers Healing. Through T-shirts designed by the likes of Raine Maida and George Stroumboulopoulos, money raised through sales helps send autistic kids to a therapeutic family surf camp in Cali.

2 Superbaugh. The Super Bowl between the San Francisco 49ers and Baltimore Ravens will see two brothers coaching against each other for the first time in Super Bowl history! John Harbaugh runs the Ravens while his younger brother Jim Harbaugh mans the 49ers. Jim must be saying to John: "Yo bro, remember, I'm your kid brother. Take it easy. It's only a game."

3 Beth Reeks. Further evidence the Internet is the place to get your start: 17-year-old Beth Reeks has signed a three-book deal with Random House after her young adult romance, The Kissing Booth, became a hit online. The book will now be published in paperback this spring. Reeks, the new teen queen of romance, is a young E L James — minus the erotica.

4 Red Pashmina. This grassroots campaign that started out of Peterborough, Ont., to empower and raise money for women in Afghanistan, has now attracted the attention of the UN. The two women behind the bright red scarves, Maryam Monsef and Jessica Melnik, are invited to speak at a United Nations summit in N.Y. on the status of women in March.

5 Obama. Beyoncé sang a rousing (albeit lip-synched) rendition of the national anthem, but the real star Monday on the Capitol steps was Barack Obama, who publicly began his second term as president at his inauguration in front of 800,000 spectators chanting "O-ba-ma!" "Now, more than ever, we must do these things as one nation, as one people," he said. He has four years left to make it happen.

6 Gretzky + Leafs? Social media went nuts this week when a show on The Fan 590 discussed the rumour Wayne Gretzky might be taking over as president of the Toronto Maple Leafs, a position left vacant after the recent firing of Brian Burke. Now if this ever happened, wow. If Gretzky can't save the Leafs, no one can.

7 Arisa Cox. Many of you might remember her from the 2001 Canadian reality series The Lofters. (I do.) So this week when Arisa Cox was named host for the first Big Brother Canada, which debuts Feb. 27th on Slice, it made perfect sense. After all, she knows exactly what it's like to live 24/7 with other strangers while the camera watches.

8 Kutcher at Macworld. Next week is the Macworld/iWorld conference in San Francisco, and Ashton Kutcher will be there to speak about what it's like playing Steve Jobs in the biopic on the Apple icon that is slated for April release. The best part would be if Kutcher actually showed up in character as Jobs. Now that would go viral.

9 Miss O. The Oprah Effect hit Western Canada as she made appearances in Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver, talking about everything from the weather — bloody cold! — to the lessons she's learned in life. "Every day you get to paint on the canvas that is your life," she told a sold-out crowd Monday night at Rexall Place in Edmonton. Who's better at motivating than Oprah?

10 Butt Out. This week is Non-Smoking Week in Canada, a campaign that has been running for 30 years. It's great to see so many people talking about #nonsmoking on Twitter. I quit almost 13 years ago. If you're thinking about stopping, go for it. You can do it. Don't let nicotine rule your life.

11 Man bandz. When boy bands grow up, they lose a little hair up top, gain a little more on their back — and reunite sometimes. Yes, NKOTB, 98 Degrees and Boyz II Men are teaming up this spring and stopping in Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto. As Old Kid, er New Kid, Donnie Wahlberg said in a statement: "Ladies, we're coming for you." Yes, it won't be girls this time.

12 Steve Nash. Captain Canada was given a loud ovation Sunday during player introductions at the ACC in Toronto. But then he and his Lakers played flat (again) in a loss to the Raptors. There are those who still wish he had signed with the Raptors during the off-season. But it's become apparent a 38-year-old Nash in the twilight of his career might not have been the right ending for this national treasure.

I've got worms ... you want some?

Tastes like chicken?

Mopane worms a rare delicacy

Sihle Nkomo begins to prepare harvested mopane worms at her home in Gwanda, Zimbabwe.

In Zimbabwe, as well as most parts of southern Africa, mopane worms are a staple part of the diet in rural areas and are considered a delicacy in the cities. They can be eaten dry, as crunchy as potato chips, or cooked and drenched in sauce.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gastronomical goodness

- A Zimbabwean nutritionist, Marlon Chidemo, says the worms are high in healthy nutrients and contain three times the amount of protein as beef.
- He says eating worms is less taxing on the environment than consuming beef because it takes far fewer leaves to produce worms than it does feed to produce the same amount of beef.

Get to know the quality of grubs

At the local market, mopane worms are quite popular with residents who buy a cup or two of them and eat them immediately.

The market is abuzz with activity, with most stalls strategically displaying the delicacy so people cannot miss them. Vendors offer free samples. The mopane worms are graded according to size and the area where they were harvested.

Mopane around

- Dried mopane worms have become a multimillion-dollar industry, even exported to countries like South Africa and Botswana. They can be found in African restaurants in Paris.
- The worm is the large caterpillar of the Gonimbrasia belina species. It got its name from chomping the leaves of mopane trees.

J.J. Abrams set to direct next installment of Star Wars being released in 2015

Another universe of sci-fi fans has been put in the hands of J.J. Abrams.

According to multiple trade reports, J.J. Abrams is set to direct the next installment of Star Wars, which Disney has said will be Episode 7 and due out in 2015. Disney bought Star Wars maker Lucasfilm last month for $4.06 billion.

The Emmy-award-winning director has also captained the reboot of Star Trek for rival studio Paramount Pictures, with the next installment in that series, Star Trek: Into Darkness, set to hit theatres May 17.

Citing unnamed sources, the news was reported earlier by Hollywood trade outlets The Wrap, The Hollywood Reporter and Daily Variety.

Jason Statham stars in Parker — a movie without a lot of payoff. HANDOUT

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

The heist goes all wrong

Bad + Bad = Bad. Steve Gow joins Richard Crouse this week to help him call out Parker for being a mistake-ridden flop of a film

Richard: Steve, the most shocking thing about Parker is that Jason Statham has hair in the opening scene. His usually close-cropped do is hidden under a wig that makes him look a bit like George Clooney's English brother. Other than that, this is as by-the-book as it gets. Did you buy into the story at all?

Steve: Not really. But as shocking as Statham is brandishing a wig as Donald E. Westlake's popular revenge-seeking character, he wasn't half as unconvincing as Jennifer Lopez when she pops up as the desperate, danger-seeking real estate agent. Was that bad casting or just a bad character?

RC: Her character is baffling. As a pseudo-love interest and almost co-conspirator, she's as grating as her co-star Nick Nolte's voice. If an Emery board could speak, it would sound like the rasp Nolte's vocal chords produce these days. For me, though, the moral of the movie is really skewed. The movie is so intent on selling the idea that the vengeful killer is really a good guy that a character at the end actually wonders if he is some kind of angel. Could it be that in this world bad + bad = good?

SG: I suppose Jason Statham is today's ideal mainstream anti-hero. After all, as mediocre as most of his films are, director Taylor Hackford is at least consistent in delivering what Statham does best — look sinister and kick butt. However, as absurdly indestructible as he is here, the film is too morose to be much fun.

RC: Statham is consistent, I'll give you that. He has two characters: Statham Character number one in which he plays a loner with a past who must protect a loved one and Statham Character number two, which is the loner with a past who must protect a youthful innocent. Here he's playing number one. The loved one is money, although there are a number of other characters that could easily have taken the place of the greenbacks.

SG: I agree. Concentrating on a compelling sidekick almost surely would've helped solve the questionably ineffectual supporting cast here.

One last thing — what kind of a name is Parker anyhow? That lame moniker sounds like Statham should be serving high tea and crumpets to the Crawley family on Downton Abbey, not cracking the skulls of crooked criminals.

Synopsis

After a daring robbery goes bad, thief Parker (Jason Statham) is double-crossed and left for dead. But because the movie is called Parker, he doesn't succumb to the gunshot wounds. Instead, he vows to put things right between him and the gang who cheated him out of his $200,000 split of the loot. "If you make a deal, both sides have to honour it, otherwise there's chaos," he says. "And I won't let chaos take over my life." Except that things get chaotic when he hatches an elaborate plan, involving his real estate agent (Jennifer Lopez), to get vengeance and his money.

Hoult: Undead man talking

Warm Bodies. Actor shares what it's like to take on a role that requires only one facial expression

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Nicholas Hoult has tackled trying to get the girl when you're an awkward tween (in About a Boy), a ruthless high-schooler (in TV's Skins) and a blue-haired mutant (in X-Men: First Class). But those challenges pale in comparison to Warm Bodies, in which he tries to win over a girl (Teresa Palmer) despite the fact that he's a flesh-eating zombie.

How tough is it doing a role that's basically one facial expression for most of the film?
Surprisingly easy, actually (laughs). Narrows down your options and what you have to do at work, and not a lot of dialogue to learn, which is beautiful. But yeah, I read the script and I was like, "This could be a cool film," and then I was like, "Oh, it's kind of tricky, though, isn't it? You don't get to say a lot, and you've got to move and act like a zombie, but you've also got to have this audience care for you and want you to succeed and have this girl care for you enough and fall for you, and there's a lot to do." With Teresa, it was just basically watching her do scenes the whole time, her just doing monologue after monologue and then I'd go, "Yeah, keep you safe. Hungry. Eat, whatever."

Have you heard every zombie joke in the world at this point?
You know what, I've made a few terrible ones myself. I've said, like, "Oh, he's a character I really liked and wanted to bring to life." Idiot. I said of the scenes with me and Rob Corddry, "I found it really difficult not to corpse" (which is British slang for laughing during a scene). So I've made a few terrible zombie jokes, but I haven't actually been on the receiving end of that many so far.

OK, zombies versus vampires. Where do you stand?
Who would win in a fight? Or the transition from vampire to zombie time?

As far as pop culture.
You know what? I'm trying to think. Aside from Twilight, what other vampire films have there been particularly recently? That's the prominent one. To be honest with you, I would probably have to go with the zombie thing just because I really like Shaun of the Dead and Zombieland and those sort of things, and 28 Days Later and stuff, so I think I'd go for the zombie — and not just because I played one in this film.

After having done this film, do you think you'd have trouble getting excited about doing a more traditional romantic comedy?
I don't know. I mean, I'm a sucker for a rom-com.
You know, you feel good and you get all gooey. But I wouldn't want to do one of those ones that's very run of the mill, out of the box, off you go, pay $10 to go and see it and then sit there and nothing new happens. So it's tricky. I'd like to be able to do all types of films. Action, drama, romance, all of them.

Nicholas Hoult finds the apple of his undead eye in Warm Bodies. HANDOUT

I don't think anyone's going to try to stop you.
So far. Not with force yet, anyway.

Just this year you've got films in several different genres coming out.
Yeah, I've got a fairy tale family adventure movie, Jack the Giant Slayer. There's mild peril. There's giants that want to eat humans, so you know, I wouldn't take a really young kid to it.

Drama

Deadfall

Director. Martin Donovan

Stars. Eric Bana, Olivia Wilde

About the most interesting aspect of Deadfall is that it was apparently filmed in a blizzard. Oscar-winning filmmaker Stefan Ruzowitzky (The Counterfeiters) may have visual skill but this derivative, contrived thriller about two sibling thieves (Bana, Wilde) that split up in snowbound Michigan only to reunite at a doomed Thanksgiving dinner complete with hostages is so dour, I'd assumed it was farce if every character weren't so utterly unaffecting.

STEVE GOW

Jason Momoa relishes Rocky sucker punch

Bullet to the Head. Brawly actor isn't a stranger to tough guy roles, but even he was star-struck working with Sylvester Stallone

scene@metronews.ca

Jason Momoa stars in Bullet to the Head, opening next Friday. GETTY IMAGES

A glance at Jason Momoa's IMDB page reveals that he is best known for playing roles described as a "vengeful barbarian warrior" or "powerful warlord." The burly six-foot-four-inch actor is famous for roles in Conan the Barbarian and Game of Thrones and often plays tough guys.

Next up he plays a muscle-bound mercenary in Bullet to the Head, an action flick the Hollywood Reporter called "beefy, brainless fun."

It's another case of typecasting, perhaps, but it did give him the chance to go mano-a-mano with one of the masters of the genre, Sylvester Stallone.

"You can't say enough good things about Stallone," says the Hawaiian-born hunk. "Truly, he is an icon. A legend, and so good at what he does."

Momoa even went through a special initiation rite courtesy of the superstar.

While shooting an epic fight scene on the film's New Orleans set, the older actor suggested he "tune me up" with a couple of real looking hits. Promising to pull his punches, Stallone instead landed a "monstrous" knock to the younger actor's side. Second take, same thing — "He just crumbled me," Momoa says — and that's the shot that made it into the film.

"He got me a couple of times," Momoa says. "He's the old bull. It's fun to get in there. I'm 30 years younger than him, so it's cool. Rocky punching me in the ribs. It's like a shout from the rock."

But how does someone raise a family when their day job is pretending to decapitate people on screen? Momoa, who has a young daughter and son with actress Lisa Bonet, says his family always comes to visit when he's working.

"My daughter was actually on set when I ripped a guy's throat out on Game of Thrones," he says. "It's hilarious. She was with the wardrobe lady, knitting. I said, 'Are you OK sweetie?' She said, 'Yeah Papa,' and went on knitting."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Lena Dunham. ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Lena Dunham skewers Rihanna over behaviour

Girls creator and star Lena Dunham is no stranger to criticism, but now she's going on the attack, chastising Rihanna for the messages the pop singer sends young fans with her behaviour.

"I just think about how many little girls beyond what I could even comprehend are obsessed with Rihanna," Dunham tells Alec Baldwin during a chat for his Here's the Thing podcast.

"She left Barbados, she's had this amazing career, she's won a Grammy. She's talented. And then she gets back together with Chris Brown and posts a million pictures of them smoking marijuana together on a bed. And it cracks my heart in half in a way that makes me feel like I'm 95 years old."

Lindsay Lohan

SXSW pans Lohan's latest flick

Lindsay Lohan's latest bid at a big-screen comeback is having trouble getting off the ground.

Her racy and controversial film The Canyons was rejected by the Sundance Film Festival earlier this month, and now it appears the South by Southwest (SXSW) festival in Austin, Texas, wants nothing to do with the film either, according to the Hollywood Reporter.

Sources say the film suffers from significant "quality issues" and has "an ugliness and a deadness to it."

The Word

Kristen Bell terrified of her impending childbirth

Kristen Bell seemed to hint during an interview with Ellen DeGeneres that she's going to give birth to a boy, but the House of Lies star kept coy with a "maybe" when pressed.

Bell had said that fiancéé Dax Shepard was looking forward to "all the off-roading he'll have in this tiny partner," but she says that doesn't mean it couldn't be a daughter.

"Do you have to be a boy to off-road? Absolutely not!" Bell said. "I think he's going to force (the baby), even if it's a sloth, to off-road."

One thing Bell was willing to admit, though, is that she's not looking forward to labour.

"I've got nothing to prove" by having natural childbirth, she said. "I feel like, when I arrive at the hospital, I want a glass of whiskey, I want the epidural in my back and I want to get hit in the face with a baseball bat and wake me up when it's over because I've seen the videos, and it looks terrifying."

Cruise at the heart of Scientology's strategy

Tom Cruise isn't only the most famous Scientologist, he's also the most important figure in the controversial religion.

"There's nobody more important in Scientology since L. Ron Hubbard. He's the front of Scientology," Lawrence Wright, author of Going Clear: Scientology, Hollywood and the Prison of Belief, tells E! News.

He also says having a movie star as the face of Scientology was always part of the plan.

"From the very beginning of the Church of Scientology, they established it in Los Angeles, they created the Celebrity Center there in Hollywood, and the whole goal was to take over the entertainment industry and use celebrities as kind of a product endorsement for their brand," Wright says.

Cheers to Robert Burns

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

I have fond memories of Robert Burns.

Growing up in Halifax, it was a standard post-Saturday-night-on-the-town ritual to enjoy a little fast food in Victoria Park, along Spring Garden Road, before the walk home. The best seat in the house was along the pedestal of the life size monument to the bard that's been standing there since 1919.

Though I don't remember drinking much in the way of Scottish booze back in the day, I'll be raising a glass of something tonight in celebration of Robert Burns Day.

Scotland's claim to liquid fame is scotch — a polarizing whisky typically drunk straight. Rich, aggressive and swimming in personality, it can be a hard glass to swallow for most.

A fine dram to get your palate wet is Bowmore 12 Year Old ($45.99 to $64.99); the first recorded single malt distillery (back in 1779) on the island of Islay.

Softer than your average Islay whisky, it offers a rounded, honeyed malt flavour massaged by hints of the classic smoky/peaty character that's made the island famous.

If the thought of drinking scotch without mix doesn't blow your bagpipe, try softening the spirit by adding a touch of spring water.

Southern flavours are a fiesta for taste buds

Tex-Mex Flank Steak with Corn Salsa.

Bursting with flavours, this dish will be just as good the next day

ROSE REISMAN
for more, visit
rosereisman.com

With the sauce and corn salsa accompaniment, this is a great Southwestern dish. Sautéing the corn gives it a barbecued flavour.

Be sure to allow time for marinating the steak. Leftovers taste just as good the next day; either reheat gently or serve at room temperature.

1. Whisk the barbecue sauce, vinegar, molasses and hot pepper sauce in a bowl. Place the flank steak in a shallow, non-reactive baking dish and pour the sauce over the steak. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate for 2 hours or overnight.

2. For the salsa, spray a non-stick skillet with cooking oil. Place over medium heat, and sauté the corn and red pepper until the corn begins to brown, about 5 minutes. Stir in the beans, onion and cilantro. Set aside.

3. Remove the steak from the marinade, and set the marinade aside in a small saucepan.

4. Preheat the barbecue or a non-stick grill pan to medium-high and spray with cooking oil. Cook the beef over medium-high heat for 5 to 8 minutes per side, or until it's done to your liking.

5. While the steak is cooking, bring the reserved marinade to a boil and boil for 5 minutes. Serve the steak with the sauce and salsa on the side. ROSE REISMAN'S COMPLETE LIGHT KITCHEN (WHITECAP BOOKS) BY ROSE REISMAN

Ingredients

- 1 cup barbecue sauce
- 1/3 cup cider vinegar
- 2 tbsp molasses
- 1/4 tsp hot pepper sauce
- 1 1/2 lb flank steak

Salsa

- 1 cup canned corn kernels, drained
- 1 cup diced red bell pepper
- 1 cup canned black beans, rinsed and drained
- 1/3 cup chopped green onion
- 1/4 cup chopped cilantro

Get your guac on

Give guacamole a boost with a few different flavour combinations that are still very simple to make.

Ingredients

Base Guacamole

- 4 Hass avocados, skins and pits removed
- 4 tsp lime juice
- 1/2 tsp ground cumin
- 1 tsp salt
- 1/4 ground black pepper

Base Guacamole

1. In a medium bowl, use a fork or potato masher to mash the avocados. The guacamole should be mostly smooth, but with visible chunks. Mix in the lime juice, cumin, salt and pepper. Proceed with the recipe using one of the following mix-in combinations.

Chipotle Corn Guacamole

1. In a medium skillet over medium-high, heat 1 tablespoon of olive oil. Add 1/4 cup diced red onion, 1 cup of corn kernels (if canned, drain them very well) and 3 minced cloves of garlic. Sauté for 2 minutes, then remove from the heat and let cool. Stir in 1 diced canned chipotle pepper (packed in adobo sauce). Stir the mixture into the base guacamole recipe, as well as 1 tablespoon (more or less, to taste) of the adobo sauce from the can.

Shrimp and Mango Guacamole

1. Thaw a 9-ounce bag frozen cooked and peeled baby shrimp, then drain and pat them dry. Peel 1 mango, then cut the flesh away from the pit. Finely chop the mango, then stir it, the shrimp and a hefty splash of hot sauce into the base guacamole recipe.

Canada gets $40M for 2014 Games

Canada's motto for the 2014 Winter Olympics and Paralympics in Sochi, Russia, is to "maintain the gain" from the 2010 Games in Vancouver.

The organizations responsible for making that happen laud both the federal government and corporate community for keeping the financial pumped primed for athletes as the Sochi Games appear on the horizon.

Bal Gosal, Canada's minister of state for sport, and Own the Podium chief executive officer Anne Merklinger both emerged from a bobsled clad in skintight suits Thursday to trumpet the almost $40 million going to Canada's winter athletes in 2012-13.

"We have more money in the year going into the Olympic and Paralympic Games than ever before," Merklinger said.

Loss to Leafs gives Pens new perspective

NHL. Apparent contenders humbled, not rattled, after Toronto opens old wounds in home opener

Penguins centre Evgeni Malkin collides with Maple Leafs centre Mikhail Grabovski on in Pittsburgh. The Penguins' strong start to the season evaporated with a 5-2 loss to the Leafs on Wednesday night. GENE J. PUSKAR/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hold off on the confetti making. Don't start looking for a good seat along the Stanley Cup parade route. Don't bother trying to pick a spot in the Consol Energy Center rafters for the next championship banner to hang.

For all their talented parts, the Pittsburgh Penguins remain very much a work in progress.

And while the Penguins knew not to overreact to a 5-2 drubbing at the hands of Toronto on Wednesday night, a loss that quickly took some of the steam out of Pittsburgh's 2-0 start, they also understand they've can't simply rely on talent every night to get the job done.

"When your mindset is not right when you're playing the Leafs, it can cost you," defenceman Kris Letang said.

Coach Dan Bylsma anticipated an emotional letdown after his team opened the season with emphatic road wins against rivals Philadelphia and the New York Rangers. He hoped the excitement of playing a home game for the first time in nine months would make up the difference.

Instead, the Penguins crumbled over the final 30 minutes, taking a series of penalties that eventually snowballed into a series of uncharacteristic mistakes the NHL's second-youngest team had no trouble pouncing on.

Toronto scored the last three goals, all of them relatively easy following Pittsburgh miscues. The most glaring came on a botched clearing attempt by Pittsburgh's Evgeni Malkin that went right to the stick of Toronto's James van Riemsdyk at the top of the left circle. The wrist shot whizzed by Marc-Andre Fleury to give the Maple Leafs a lead they would not give back.

And just like that, the aura of invincibility the Penguins showed while drumming the Flyers and Rangers evaporated and the ghosts of last spring's playoff meltdown against Philadelphia returned.

Not that Sidney Crosby is quite ready to go down that road. The superstar chalked Pittsburgh's poor performance in front of the largest crowd ever to see a hockey game in Consol Energy Center history to a bad night.

"We know what we need to do, we just weren't as sharp as we needed to be," said Crosby, who collected his first goal in 280 days on a breakaway in the second period that tied the game 2-2. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MLB. Upton brothers join forces with Atlanta Braves

Justin Upton is having a family reunion in Atlanta.

Arizona traded its star right-fielder to the Braves on Thursday in a seven-player deal that sent former all-star infielder Martin Prado to the Diamondbacks.

For the first time since he was a high school freshman, Upton will have older brother B.J. Upton as a teammate.

The brothers combine with Jason Heyward, who won a Gold Glove in 2012.

"If we push ourselves to the next level, I feel with the extra push from each other there's no question we can be the best outfield in baseball," Justin Upton said in a telephone interview. "I'm not going to give us that label until we prove it." The Braves also get third baseman Chris Johnson and are giving up one of their top pitching prospects, Randall Delgado, and three minor leaguers in the deal. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Harbaughs in stands vow to stay neutral

Super Bowl 47 lead-up. Family of Ravens and 49ers coaches not saying where they'll be sitting on game day

Jackie Harbaugh will wear a neutral-colored outfit, still to be determined. Her daughter, Joani Crean, little sister to coaching brothers John and Jim Harbaugh, plans to sport all black at the Super Bowl to show no allegiances whatsoever.

"I am wearing whatever fits that day," Crean quipped.

The entire Harbaugh family — a close-knit, hyper-competitive crew that also includes Indiana basketball coach Tom Crean — realizes it has already won big. They got their Super Bowl victory on Sunday, when each coach did his part to ensure a family reunion in New Orleans next week, with John's Baltimore Ravens facing off against Jim's San Francisco 49ers in the first Super Bowl with sibling coaches on opposite sidelines.

One Harbaugh will haul home the Lombardi Trophy from the Big Easy.

And, no, the family members haven't decided where to sit for the Feb. 3 NFL title game at the Superdome — or at least they aren't revealing it if they have.

"We are neutral in the Super Bowl, and we are just excited that they have brought their teams to the pinnacle of sports," Jackie Harbaugh said Thursday. "The Super Bowl is the ultimate accomplishment for them and for their teams and for all of the extended football family and all of the teams who have participated in this great game. We are excited for that type of thing."

Her sons, all of 15 months apart, have tried to downplay this matchup from the moment it developed — each wanting to keep the focus on the players, on the field.

Fortunately for the Harbaugh folks, they've been through this once before, albeit on a slightly smaller stage: Prime time on Thanksgiving night 2011. John's Ravens won 16-6 at home.

"We experienced that last year at Thanksgiving," Jack Harbaugh said, "the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat."

Relationship hoax. Te'o plays voice mails from 'girlfriend' on Couric show

The person Manti Te'o says was pretending to be his online girlfriend told the Notre Dame linebacker "I love you" in voice mails played during his interview with Katie Couric.

Taped earlier this week and broadcast Thursday, the hour-long show featured three voice mails that Te'o claims were left for him last year. Te'o said they were from the person he believed to be Lennay Kekua, a woman he had fallen for online but never met face-to-face.

After the first message was played, Te'o said: "It sounds like a girl, doesn't it?"

"It does," Couric responded.

The interview was the All-American's first on camera since his tale of inspired play after the deaths of his grandmother and girlfriend on the same day in September unravelled as a hoax by Deadspin.com on Jan. 16.

Manti Te'o THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Couric addressed speculation the tale was concocted by Te'o as a way to cover up his sexual orientation. Asked if he were gay, Te'o said "no" with a laugh. "Far from it. Faaaar from that."

He also said he was "scared" and "didn't know what to do" after receiving a call on Dec. 6 — two days before the Heisman Trophy presentation — from a person who claimed to be his "dead" girlfriend.

The first voice mail was from what was supposed to be Kekua's first day of chemotherapy for leukemia.

"Hi, I am just letting you know I got here and I'm getting ready for my first session and, um, just want to call you to keep you posted. I miss you. I love you. Bye," the person said.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
So long as you enjoy what you are doing, you won't care in the slightest what other people think. Life is simply too short to worry about whether the world sees you as a "good guy" or a "bad guy".

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
The only danger today is that because you insist on everything being thought out and planned in advance you might lose the spark of spontaneity that turns good ideas into great ideas. Be more open to alternative viewpoints.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Today's Sun-Uranus link is sure to change your life for the better in some way. Exactly how and to what extent is impossible to know but by this time tomorrow you will have both a wider and deeper view of reality.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Don't limit yourself to tried and trusted methods. Try something new for a change. Uranus, planet of changes, is urging you to be a bit more adventurous, especially on the work front where you should be taking the lead.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You must live up to your beliefs, even if it brings you into conflict with people you would prefer not to make enemies of. You are entitled to think for yourself and to express your opinions, loudly if needs be.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You have been ignoring a number of warning signals and that's not a good idea. Today's Sun-Uranus link will again indicate where you have been going wrong and this time you must take appropriate action.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Try not to exert yourself too much today. Given the choice between doing more or doing less, choose the latter without hesitation. You've done your bit, so treat yourself to a break.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
If you are typical of your sign, you sometimes find it hard to think outside certain limits or boundaries. But, today's Sun-Uranus link will shatter any barriers that are holding you back. The word "impossible" should not exist.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You could easily mislead yourself today about an issue that seems unimportant but is likely to have far-reaching consequences. Check every relevant fact. Don't take anything on trust, not even what your own senses tell you.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Forget about perfection today. Just aim to be as good as you can be at what you do and be happy with that. It's always good to set yourself new goals but it's not good to make them unreachable.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
The Sun in your sign makes a positive link to your ruling planet Uranus today, which in plain language means that all your best traits will come to the forefront. Others will see you as some kind of genius.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
You must not be indecisive today, because an opportunity will arrive out of the blue and if you don't make use of it immediately it will pass you by just as quickly. You may not feel confident, but act as if you are.
